

FORWARD MARCH- 8
JUNE - 2007
HOMOEOPATHY IN DENTISTRY

"Holistic dentistry relates your oral health to your general health"

Beautiful, healthy teeth convey an image of youth, health and happiness. Good-looking teeth and fresh breath boost self-esteem and confidence.

Homoeopathy a scientific and effective system of medicines recognizes that all symptoms of ill health are expressions of disharmony within the whole person and that it is the patient who needs treatment, not the disease.

The carries, discoloration, gums boils, discomfort in eating and drinking relating to teeth are the conditions that often reflect one's underlying state of health and suggest that the immune system needs a boost. In such cases a dentist carries out management procedures to alleviate the problems, but to prevent a recurrence and to improve the overall state of health, one needs permanent solution. Homoeopathy offers solution to such dental problems by gentle, safe and effective way.

Teeth grinding.

This is surprisingly a common condition now a days particularly in children.

Teeth Crumbling/Repeated caries.

These conditions reflect your general constitutional state and should be treated as such for which homoeopathy does not has equal.

Teething problems of babies and the children.

It is a common experience of all of us that during teething time how a baby is crying, wants to be carried, goes from one person to other without any relief. During the time the baby also is getting frequent diarrhea, running nose, fever and other common maladies. In such cases homoeopathic little, harmless pills work as a wonder.

Antibiotics.

If one is not interested in using antibiotics, there are homoeopathic medicines, which can be prescribed for infections, abscesses, and gum disease in place of antibiotics.

We have all experienced the unavoidable and some times uncomfortable sensations that are associated with some necessary dental procedures like:

- Tooth extractions.
- Toothache.
- Dental abscesses.
- Swelling of site after dental procedure.
- Root canal treatment.

Appropriate Homoeopathic remedies given before and after a dental procedure such as an extraction or root canal, can help both to minimize and reduce any inflammation, and to speed up the healing. These medicines themselves are not increasing the speed of the healing time, but they are stimulating the immune system to repair and heal in its own ways, which are far superiors than those we do. The homoeopathic medicines take away the fatigue and rather shaky feeling after tooth extractions and assist the tooth socket to heal more quickly. They can reduce anxiety before and during dental treatment, increase your comfort by reducing any pain and inflammation that is likely. Overall, they can have an extremely positive outcome and optimize one's responses to any dental procedure.

---

Issued by: The Sachiv, Arogya Samiti, Bamara Arogya Kendra,
17/28, Jyoti Park, Gurgaon. Tel: 4076475

---

